

Your tax-deductible gift to Cedille Chicago, NFP helps us share the work of Chicago's world-class musicians with the world.

All of our project ideas come from the artists themselves. As a nonprofit, our decisions are based on artistic merit rather than sales projections.

HERE'S WHAT ARTISTS SAY ABOUT CEDILLE

I love the fact that [working with Cedille] feels like a real artistic collaboration rather than some kind of a business arrangement...It's really about what music really means a lot to me, and what do I think I can bring to the world.

— Rachel Barton Pine, violinist

What was immediately palpable was the passion this label has for production, coupled with a true openness to the ideas of their artists; a true partnership, which seems to be a rarity in the industry. This attitude of inspiration and collaboration produces recordings of special significance and emotional depth —and that, in our view, is what recorded music should be about!

— Camden Shaw
Dover Quartet

Recordings for composers are extremely important. Our music does not get out there without a recording. I can't tell you how many pieces I've written that nobody knows anything about, even if I think they're my best pieces, just because I don't have a recording of it.

— Jim Stephenson, composer

The classical music recording sphere is more important than it's ever been because this music can reach so many people through streaming services, record sales, and records that are sold on tour.

— David Skidmore
Third Coast Percussion
